

Perpetual Calendar

The number shown for each year indicates which Gregorian calendar to use. For 1582-1799, or for Julian calendar, see page 788.

Table with 12 columns for years 1821-1946 and 12 rows for months (JANUARY to DECEMBER). Each cell contains a sequence of numbers representing the days of the month.

Table with 12 columns for years 1947-2000 and 12 rows for months (JANUARY to DECEMBER). Each cell contains a sequence of numbers representing the days of the month.

Table for years 1978-1979. It shows two columns for 1978 and 1979, each with 12 rows for months (JANUARY to DECEMBER). Each cell contains a sequence of numbers representing the days of the month.

Table for years 2001-2002. It shows two columns for 2001 and 2002, each with 12 rows for months (JANUARY to DECEMBER). Each cell contains a sequence of numbers representing the days of the month.

Table for years 2003-2004. It shows two columns for 2003 and 2004, each with 12 rows for months (JANUARY to DECEMBER). Each cell contains a sequence of numbers representing the days of the month.

Table for years 2005-2006. It shows two columns for 2005 and 2006, each with 12 rows for months (JANUARY to DECEMBER). Each cell contains a sequence of numbers representing the days of the month.

Table for years 2007-2008. It shows two columns for 2007 and 2008, each with 12 rows for months (JANUARY to DECEMBER). Each cell contains a sequence of numbers representing the days of the month.

Table for years 2009-2010. It shows two columns for 2009 and 2010, each with 12 rows for months (JANUARY to DECEMBER). Each cell contains a sequence of numbers representing the days of the month.

Table for years 2011-2012. It shows two columns for 2011 and 2012, each with 12 rows for months (JANUARY to DECEMBER). Each cell contains a sequence of numbers representing the days of the month.